"Why, yes, we've spoken about it. The building was old and the thing was all frame construction. I've often thought that when it would be around here, it would be gone."

"What reason can you give that so many patients were caught in the fire?"

"That's something I can't understand. I didn't know of Mrs. Thomas ever saying another word except to Wined and me about the fire department. She must have

"The last was the fifth time since the middle of March."

"Were those other fires caused by some one?"

"We were set delinked as though there were set deliberately. They were all in the basement."

"Did you find any of the girls did it?"

"Why, some people think so, but I hardly know. I don't know how they could, for we guard the matches very carefully."

"Do you know of anyone else who might have set it afire?"

"No, unless it were bad wiring, or some of the boys, or some automobileist dropping matches or cigarettes."

Destroyed School One of Many Institutions That Offer Hard Problem

Los Angeles county had no direct interest in the Hope Development school, but the county was aside from the supervision exercised over it and similar institutions by the County Public Welfare Commission, Supervisor Bean, who is chairman of the public welfare committee of the Board of Supervisors, said last night.

"I know the Public Welfare Commission has been having a lot of trouble finding suitable locations for dependent and subnormal children in the county. The problem is a hard one. The commission serves without pay and the men and women on it devote a large amount of their time to this work." Mr.

Bean's statement was made after he makes an inspection of the school owned and controlled by the county to see that we have fire protection and all safeguards," he added.

OFFICIALS
OF COUNTY
ACT TODAY
Supervisors to Take Step
to Safeguard All Institutions
From Fire

The Board of Supervisors unoubtedly will take some action
the first thing in the morning to determine the responsibility for the unfortunate fire at the Hope school and learn if other institutions in which the county has some interest are properly protected from fire hazard.
This was the statement of Superior Wright, chairman of the Probation Committee of the Board of Supervisors, last night following his arrival from the scene of the disaster, when he learned that two lives were lost in the flames that destroyed the Hope Development School at Playa del Rey Saturday night.
Superior Wright, in company with Probation Officer Holland, inspected the school a few weeks ago and at that time, Mr. Wright said last night, demanded that certain changes be made at once.
Shortly afterward they again visited the place and noticed that some of the improvements suggested were being carried out.
"One of the things I insisted on having there were outside stairways from floor to floor. These were on the side of the house, and my recollection now is that they were made available. As I recall it now, the stairways were like the building, of wood, but on the outside of the building helped some," he said.
Mr. Wright said he knew that efforts to find a better location were being made, but that under the present conditions it is extremely hard to properly protect defective and dependent children.
"Only a month ago the Board of Supervisors, acting on my motion, adopted a resolution asking Fire Chief Scott to personally make an inspection of all buildings owned and controlled by the county to see that we have proper fire protection and all needed safeguards," he added.

Uncle Joe Stands Pat
"Speaking of Mr. Cannon," writes E. S., "would you care to write Uncle Joe's creed? It is a joke and I copy it for you from my scrapbook: 'I believe in ganization known as humanity, I sponsible for its maintenance at all

FIRE CAUSE HUNT TO BE SEARCHING

Four From Sheriff Office Conduct Inquiry at Scene of Disaster

Searching investigation as to the origin of the Playa del Rey fire and the conditions which made possible the appalling loss of life will be made by the Sheriff's office, Sheriff Traeger declared yesterday. Undersheriff Bialasius began the investigation yesterday morning, acting without orders, and three deputies—R. Jones, Townsend and Connelly—were detailed to report at the scene of the holocaust.

"Every effort to determine the origin of the fire and to uncover conditions affecting the safety of the occupants of the home will be made by my office," Sheriff Traeger said.

LICENSE DENIED TO SCHOOL

STRUCTURE HELD TO BE UNFIT FOR HOME

of the lowest grade mentality and most of them undoubtedly did not realize what was happening when the building burst into flames, persons familiar with the institution said. A number of children were sent to the home with the hope that industrial and educational programs there would help develop their mentalities. Color head work, an industrial school, gardening and other occupational activities were on the program of the school.

The State Board of Charities and Corrections is composed of Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffe, Oakland; Henry Robert Braden, Sacramento; Mrs. Maude S. King, Sacramento; Mrs. Laura T. Kelley, Upland; and Amy Steinhart Braden, executive secretary.

NO OTHER PLACE
Although it was generally understood that the fire hazard at the home was great, the overcrowded condition of the only other similar institution in the county—the Sanborn School at Eldridge, necessitated the commitment of subnormal children to the home, according to a statement by George H. Hutton, president of the Public Welfare Commission, made yesterday at Venice, during the investigation.

"There was no other place to send the children," Mr. Hutton said. "The Eldridge school was full to overflowing and could not possibly care for many more. We simply had to make the best of the situation."

Mr. Hutton declared the children at the home received the best of care under the circumstances. The home, he said, was something of a receiving station for subnormal children. They were kept there until their mental condition had improved sufficiently for them to be placed in private homes.

The original permit to operate the home as an institution for subnormal children, was issued by the Public Welfare Commission ten or eleven years ago, Mr. Hutton said. Mrs. Jacobs was granted a permit during April, he said.

W. H. Holland, superintendent of county charities and probation officer, was assisting in the relief work and in the identification of the victims. Every possible effort to care for the survivors will be made and identification of the victims will be rushed, he said.

HOME INSPECTED
County authorities were aware of the danger from fire at the home and had started plans for the construction of a new home, Mr. Holland said. The mechanical department was working on plans for a new home to take care of the subnormal children of the county, he said.

Two weeks ago, Mr. Holland and County Supervisor Henry W. Wright visited the home and inspected it thoroughly, Mr. Holland said. They found, he said, conditions greatly improved in the matter of reduction of fire hazards and in every precaution taken to prevent the children from starting fires, he declared. The children, he said, were not allowed to play with matches and all matches used in the home were of the safety type. Three or four minor fires have been started at the home in the past, he said, apparently by the inmates.

Marriage of Seventy-five Years Shown

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
WASHINGTON, June 1.—In granting a widow's pension to Mrs. Lydia A. Hunt of Green Harbor, Mass., the pension office of the Interior Department has discovered a married couple who until the recent death of the husband had lived together for almost seventy-five years.

Last year the pension office found an Oklahoma Civil War veteran and his wife who had been married seventy-three years. This was regarded the longest matrimonial record in the history of the bureau until the new one just unearthed.

A blind automobile mechanic in Rochester, N. Y., has taught many a young man the trade.

Sylvester Vogel, war veteran, badly scorched face; injuries to left eye.
B. O. Burns, fire mechanic, knocked down by live wire.
Walter T. C. Curtis, war veteran, burned on hands, neck on face and neck in rescue work.

MANY OBSTACLES
The commission has been met with many discouraging obstacles in its efforts to find proper places for the housing of unfortunate. When a suitable place usually it is our experience that people in the vicinity at once rise up in arms against it and that their protests usually are recognized. The institutional homes for unfortunate cannot be sent to out of the way places or to the edges of the desert because the officials who must visit them cannot do efficient work," Mrs. Sterry continued.

"We have chased all over the country trying to locate a place for the Hope School. In spite of the fact that we recognized the dangers at Del Rey, the fact remained that we had no place to send these children. But nothing in this respect should be considered as justifying any slightest infraction of the rules laid down by us."

Explaining the co-operation with the State board, Mrs. Sterry said that the county body acted as a sort of an agent for the State board and that the result was that any institution found up to the standards of the two boards received two permits. In the case of the Hope School, as Miss Margaret P. Birch, southern agent for the State Board of Charities and Corrections, pointed out, the State permit was refused Mrs. Jacobs and only the county permit, a temporary one, was issued.

Incidentally, it was brought out in the interview with Mrs. Sterry and Mrs. Lewis there have been several fires in the building before and every official connected with the administration or supervision of the home has been living in constant fear of a disastrous fire.

OPINION ASKED
The disadvantage of working under conditions recently adapted has resulted in the fact that the County Commission now finds itself unable to enforce its rulings in some places in the county, Mrs. Sterry said.

"A few days ago a woman running a home in a near-by city refused to carry out our orders and we were told by the County Counsel's office that we have no right to consider this case a similar one. As the result we have sent letters to the Attorney-General and to the County Counsel asking for a clear legal opinion," she said.

According to Roy W. Dwyer, Assistant County Counsel, who has handled the case in question, the point is one of jurisdiction. The case referred to by Mrs. Sterry was inside an incorporated city, he said, and under the county ordinance the Welfare Commission has no jurisdiction there. If the institution comes under the laws of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, only the State can act there, he said.

Zonite

—for personal hygiene

Nothing undermines personal attractiveness so surely as sickness, particularly those extended sicknesses due to the inroads of germ life. That is why personal hygiene is so important, assuring as it does, that blessing of perfect health which all authorities agree is the first essential to womanly beauty.

The answer and secret for those who would enhance and preserve personal beauty is simply this—eternal vigilance. Vigilance especially against disease producing germs which, surer than anything else, carry suffering into the home. Suffering, both mental and physical, which leaves its ugly lines on the faces of those who undergo it.

Zonite—the new, World War antiseptic—is one of science's most powerful germ destroyers. It is indispensable to modern, personal hygiene.

Zonite is non-poisonous, and is many times as powerful as any solution of carbolic acid or bichloride of mercury that can be safely used upon the human body.

CRICQUI KNOCKED OUT BY DANNY FRUSH

RIGHT TO JAW FINISHES PARIS BATTLE IN EIGHTH Frenchman Holds American Boxer Even Until Seventh Round; Ex-Champ Will Retire

(BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS) PARIS, June 1.—Danny Frush, the American boxer, today knocked out Eugene Cricqui, former world's champion featherweight, in the eighth round of what was to have been a twenty-round bout.

In the first round the men started with Cricqui seeking an opening. He tried several times to connect with his famous right, but Frush stood him off with left jabs and right counters which gave the American boy a slight edge at the bell. Cricqui in the second round over a magnificent left to the jaw, but Frush took it without flinching. The French boy tried to follow up his blow, but Frush sent him back with a hard right. Again Cricqui was hit, but his attacks were warded off by a succession of lefts which gave Frush the advantage at the end of the round.

FRUSH MORE AGILE
After this round Frush was about even until the seventh. Frush was more agile and his blows seemed to be harder than those of Cricqui.

In the eighth Frush sailed into Cricqui with the tap of the bell, heading at will on head and body. Cricqui, his face bloody and his eye starting, finally went to the canvas from a hard right to the jaw. He was all out. He attempted to rise, but was unable to do so. After the referee had counted him out, Frush aided the defeated boy to his feet.

Cricqui's battle with Frush today was considered by the sporting press, and two reporters who had been at the fight, as one of the most famous in recent history. The public generally is praising the police force and the particular newspaper reporters, for solving the great mystery. Thousands of theories were sent into the Police Department and to newspaper editors every day, no matter how far-fetched, was run down. It was newspaper editors who were credited with the clue of the glasses worn by Leopold when he was carrying the body of the victim to the morgue, and two reporters who had been many hours without food sleep who thought to question a garage man at the Leopold home. These two clues, when worked out, solved the mystery brought the confessions.

PARISIANS TOO Busy to Weep Over Georges
(BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS) PARIS, June 1.—The defeat of Georges Carpentier by Tom Gibbons hardly caused a ripple on the surface of the sporting life of Paris in the boulevard cafes today. Every body was busy discussing the soccer football game between France and Uruguay and the fight between Eugene Cricqui and Danny Frush.

There was no shedding of tears over the downfall of Carpentier. University of Iowa has nine letter men among its baseball squad this year.

Showing of United States in Saturday's Meets Indicates Strength in Paris Games

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE) NEW YORK, June 1.—America's hopes of a decisive victory in defense of her Olympic track and field laurels in the international games at Paris in July have regained a brighter view as a result of the spectacular array of performances in the intercollegiate championships, the most important group of preliminary tests yet conducted.

The results of these meets forecast a mighty battle of speed and brawn in the final trials at Cambridge, June 13 and 14. Outstanding in the list of track achievements were the feats of Ivan Riley, Illinois A.C., timber-topper, in setting a new world's record of 52 1-10 seconds for the 400-meter hurdles at Ann Arbor, Mich., and of Eric Wilson, fleet Yale University sprinter, who eclipsed Charley Faddock's 200-meter world's record with a mark of 21 1-10 seconds.

Several new sprinting stars flashed to the fore, notably J. Cheany of Howard Payne University, Texas, who tied the world's 100-meter record of 10 4-5 seconds at New Orleans, while George Hill, a product of Lawson Robb school, showed his heels to the fastest college man in the country with victories at 100 at 220 yards in the I.C.A.A.A. championships.

STRAGMALIA ON HAND FOR BOUT

Rocco Here to Meet Dempsey Tomorrow Night

Says He Will Knock Champion for Several Loops

King of Heavyweights to Box Two Other Fighters

Declaring that he'll give the world's heavyweight king all the action he wants for a couple of rounds, Rocco Stragmalia, flashy Oakland scrapper, pulled into town yesterday from San Francisco and announced to the wide, wide world that he was ready to tackle Jack Dempsey in one of the feature bouts of the monster benefit boxing show at the Vernon Coliseum tomorrow night under the auspices of the Philanthropy and Civics Club.

"I think I've had Dempsey's goat since that training encounter at Shelby," declared Rocco last night. "I'm not a champion, but I know how to beat one in a short bout."

Dempsey finished up his training grind at Universal City yesterday by boxing eight rounds and stepping along the road for about five miles. If the big fellow ever was right he is now.

The champion will box three opponents two rounds each at tomorrow night's benefit, which promises to be the greatest ring event ever held in California. Dempsey's first opponent will be Fred Sullivan, who is billed to go a couple of rounds. Sullivan, who is being touted as a coming champion by Tommy Simpson, recently beat Stragmalia in a northern ring. Pat Lester, another heavyweight, who was dug up by the veteran manager, Tim McGrath, somewhere in the wilds of Arizona, will come next and Stragmalia will follow. Sam Eisman, who was to have boxed Dempsey in one of the bouts, was pulled out of the program.

KRUG PRESENTS A NEW LINE-UP

Cruise Gets Two Blows in First Appearance

Myers and Payne Set Bees Back for Angels

Wally Hood Hits Home Run With Bases Full

BY ROBERT E. RAY
Our Angels, slightly revamped, wound up the week in a flame of glory or something yesterday by taking a double-header from Salt Lake and earning an even break with the Bees in the eight-game series. The scores were, 3 to 1, and 13 to 3.

Elmer Myers got revenge for the thumping handed him by the Bees earlier in the week by holding his former teammates to one run in the initial encounter and outpitching Elmer Fonder, for whom the Bees traded him to the Angels. Coumbe's home run drive into the right-field stands in the second inning prevented Myers from getting a shut-out. In the second game George Payne toyed with the Bees while his mates mixed Salt Lake errors with hits off McCabe and Thomas for an even dozen tallies.

The feature of the afternoon was the maiden appearance of Walton Cruise, recently purchased from the Boston Braves, in center field for the Angels in the first game. Cruise got a double, a single and walked once in four trips to the plate and drove in three runs. Marty Krug showed a shifted infield, with Whaley at third, Durst at first and himself back at second. Babe Trombly also returned to his old stand in right field. Cruise stood in for the second game, Durst going to center and Jacobs holding down first. The line-up Krug presented in the first game looks like the

WESTERN TRACK MEN FAILED BECAUSE OF TOO MUCH WORK

BY BRAVEN DYER

Why did the Stanford and U. S. C. track teams fail to live up to expectations in the annual I. C. A. A. A. track meet at Cambridge Saturday? Every track man in the West has probably been asking himself that question since Yale cleaned up first honors, to the sorrow of all Stanford supporters.

Several reasons have been advanced. In the first place, it is apparent that the Cardinal team fell down woefully on the track. When the proteges of Dick Templeton met U. S. C. here early in the season it was predicted that unless the Stanford track performers improved considerably and held their form they wouldn't figure to win the big meet in the East. Hartman was the big gun here and inasmuch as he made 10 of the 24 1/2 points scored in Saturday's meet, it is easy to see that the rest of the team failed to exhibit the class they had shown in their last two meets on the Pacific Coast.

Boyd Comstock, former U. S. C. and Yale coach, who picked Stanford to win over Yale, provided the Cardinal men stood up in their track races, is of the opinion that the Cardinal and Trojan athletes were not trained properly. Bill Kerr failed to place in the mile, even though it was run as slow as the East as 4m. 23s. Miller was likewise left out of the quarter-mile with the time a full second slower than what he is accustomed to doing. All of the sprinters and hurdlers were decidedly off form.

In the case of the latter men there is probably some excuse, for they were forced to run a whole flock of heats,

Wesbrook and Snodgrass in Tennis Finals

Some exciting tennis was dished up at the Los Angeles Tennis Club yesterday afternoon when play was continued in the annual championship tournament. Only men's matches were scheduled yesterday. Walter Wesbrook and Harvey Snodgrass moved into the finals by disposing of Godshall and Reinke, respectively.

In the doubles the team of Wesbrook and Snodgrass came through victorious, trimming Thomas and Bixler, 6-1, 6-3. Snodgrass and Warren had a hard time of it with Godshall and Ferrandini, but finally won out after three tough sets.

The semifinals in the doubles will be played next Saturday afternoon with Wesbrook and Snodgrass meeting Reinke and Varied. The winner of this match plays Snodgrass and Warren the following day for the championship.

Wesbrook and Snodgrass will also battle it out for the singles title.

Yesterday's results follow:

Men's singles—Wesbrook defeated Bixler, 6-4, 6-2; Snodgrass defeated Thomas, 6-1, 6-3; Wesbrook defeated Godshall, 6-1, 6-2.

Doubles—Wesbrook and Snodgrass defeated Godshall and Ferrandini, 6-1, 6-3; Snodgrass and Warren defeated Thomas and Bixler, 6-1, 6-3.

Bill Mallory has been voted the best all-around athlete at Yale. He was captain of Yale's football team last season and catcher on the baseball team.

Gretchen and Winnie Annex Yacht Honors

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH) SAN DIEGO, June 1.—The Gretchen, with S. A. Cobean at the helm, and Ed Peterson's Winnie, won the honors in the opening regatta of the summer season today, staged by the San Diego Yacht Club.

The Gretchen, Commodore George Gay's Aloha and Vic Doyle's Trilby in a seventeen-mile sail from the clubhouse at Coronado Tent City, around the bell buoy. Winnie defeated a field of six in the B class event.

Commodore Albert Frost and Alonzo Jessop brought their new stock cruiser Sunbeam, built at the Fellows plant from Catalina to the harbor in seven hours' running time. The Sunbeam is a sister ship of the Three R's recently purchased by R. Hathaway and R. Buel of the local club and arrangements are being made for a race between the two crafts.

Baron Long's new yacht, Colleen, recently purchased by the San Diego sportsman in Seattle, also arrived in port this morning.

FAREWELL DINNER FOR CARL SCHOTT

Pomona College men will gather at a banquet this evening in honor of Coach Carl Schott, baseball coach for the last seven years, who leaves the Claremont institution at the end of the present year. This season was the first time in seven years that the Schottens have not either won or tied for the baseball title. He has also coached the Pomona basketball team. Coach Schott goes to Columbia University for further study along athletic lines.

IOWA DEMOCRAT CORPSE REVIVES

Contest for Nominations in Today's Primary Hot

Young Auto Dealer Stirs Up Old Party Activity

Threatened Republican Split Gives Leaders Hope

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING (EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

DES MOINES, June 1.—The Democratic party in Iowa, which was supposed to be dead, having been buried recently on several memorable occasions, suddenly has come to life, burst its shroud, and proceeded to cavort over the premises in a most unseemly fashion—for a corpse.

Some say it is all because of the threatened splitting of the Republican party by a third party or by Senator La Follette or by both, the Democrats perceiving a chance of winning the State's electoral vote if their opponents are seriously divided.

Others will tell you that the resurrection is not due so much to circumstances in the Republican party as to phenomena in the Democratic ranks, notably to the rise and inspiration of a new leader—Clyde Herring, the popular young automobile dealer, Herring, a week ago, set out to smash the Old Guard, which, under the marshaling of National Committeeman Wilbur Marshall, has dominated the Democratic party in this State for many years. Many friends of Herring wished him luck, but they did not think he really would succeed—they thought he would come out of the fracas smashed up himself, with Marshall on top.

PUTS OVER HIS IDEA

Herring, who is reputed to be one of the most responsible of the fact that Iowa has the highest per capita distribution of automobiles in the country, proceeded to sell his new idea to the Iowa Democrats with great persuasiveness. He journeyed through the State telling his fellow Democrats that they should get progressive and stay progressive and retire Marshall and his kindred reactionaries from control of the party. With Herring independence is no mere pose—in 1904 he bolted Parker and voted for Roosevelt.

When the primary was over it was found Herring had cleaned up the old crowd. Of the twenty-six Iowa votes in the New York convention eighteen are to be cast by delegates supporting his friend William Gibbs McAdoo. Then at the State convention the delegation chose Herring to succeed Marshall as National Committeeman. He had accomplished the unbelievable and his friends told him they had known he would do it all along.

Now, whether because of the chance of a Republican split or because of Herring's inspiration and contagious enthusiasm or both, Democrats are beginning to entertain visions of carrying Iowa and are actually sweeping over the prospective jobs. For the first time in years there is a contest in the Democratic primary tomorrow. Usually Democratic nominations in this State go by default, the State never going Democratic anyway and the selection of Democratic candidates being only a perfunctory formality. Usually the Democrats do their primary voting in the Republican primary, it being said they voted numerous times for Smith Brookhart in 1922 and insured the nomination of that radical whose cowardly boots awake ever and anon such schemes in the Senate chamber at Washington as are not awakened by the stenographic tones of that other radical, Magnus Johnson of Minnesota.

NOT CONTENTS COMING

This time, however, the Democratic nominations look as if they might be worth having and Iowa Democrats are going to vote largely in their own primary. There will be heated contests over the selection of candidates for Senator and Governor. There are three candidates for the nomination for Senator—Daniel Steck of Ottumwa, a young lawyer, a Progressive, who was State Commander of the American Legion last year; John D. Denison of Des Moines, who is described as a Brookhart Democrat, and Dr. Keyes, the Farm Bloc candidate. Steck is expected to win. The candidates for the nomination for Governor are J. C. Murtagh of Waterloo and Daniel Unsicker, a Mahaska county farmer, to a political conference in a doubtful result of that contest is in doubt.

If McAdoo falls of nomination at New York, Iowa Democrats will bring forward E. T. Meredith, the Des Moines farm paper publisher and Secretary of Agriculture in the Wilson administration, for either first or second place on the ticket. Meredith is an ardent McAdoo supporter and is expected to appear to be taking seriously the boom started hereabouts for himself for President.

If the Democrats should place an eastern conservative at the head of their ticket they doubtless would scan the West for a progressive Vice-President whereupon Meredith would be urged as one who would appeal so strongly to the farmers that the Democrats would have a chance of carrying not only Iowa but other agrarian States in which Republican disaffection is rife.

Herring thinks the protective tariff will be an important issue in the campaign this year.

The farmers have discovered they have been bamboozled by the tariff, he said. They have not received the protection they expected from a tariff on farm products. Wheat went down right after President Coolidge put the tariff up, but the farmers have found the tariff on manufactured goods is holding up the prices of the articles they must buy and there are plenty of signs they are ready to endorse the Democratic low tariff position.

Democrats attach much significance to a letter condemning the existing tariff law written by George E. Roberts, vice-president of the National City Bank of New York, formerly a Republican leader and once director of the mint who hails from Iowa.

Yes, We Have No Grapes!

The new clerk was trained to believe that if you did not have the article demanded by the customer you should try to sell her something else.

A woman came in and asked for grapes.

"No, ma'am, we have no grapes," he said. "We have grape nuts, grape jelly and grape juice," was his illuminating reply.—[Progressive Green.]

WEATHER DATA BUSINESS HELP

Umbrella Dealer Reduces Loss by Study

Sheep Raiser Learns When to Buy Lands

Architects Consult Charts When Building

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN (EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

WASHINGTON, June 1.—It costs a lot of money to run the government but the public is learning more and more how to get its money's worth out of the product of the government departments.

One product of the government which is gaining increasing use in the commercial world is the weather forecast. Everyone is familiar with the laconic sentences which appear in all newspapers forecasting the weather for the following day. These forecasts, by the way, now have reached a mark of more than 80 per cent accuracy. In earlier days of meteorology, the weather man's prediction used to be laughed at, but in nearly nine cases out of ten nowadays he is right.

RAIN'S INFLUENCE

When one speaks of weather in most parts of the United States, the idea of rain is probably the first mental reaction. To show how this idea has been commercialized one may read the experience of a large umbrella dealer. He had been in the habit of ordering large consignments of umbrellas from the manufacturers in the autumn because he was under the general impression that more rain was noticeable at that season.

Then it occurred to him to approach the matter scientifically and he got in touch with the Weather Bureau. He worked out a chart which proved an efficient guide to the amount of rain which would fall in the various months of the year. On the basis of this chart he placed orders for umbrellas to be delivered month by month in quantities proportional to the expected rainfall. The system worked perfectly. He was never overstocked and never sold entirely out.

A western sheep raiser furnishes another interesting example. He had suffered losses by purchasing young lambs and having them killed by adverse weather conditions. After studying weather charts extending over long periods, he was able to make a calculation showing the earliest date in the spring at which it would be safe to buy lambs. There was only about a week's difference in his time of purchase under the new system but it turned his losses into profits.

Architects and builders, especially in regions where snow falls, are more and more consulting weather charts as a guide to the construction of roofs. The whole nation remembers how the roof of the Knickerbocker Theater in Washington collapsed two years ago after an unusually heavy snowstorm, killing scores of people. By consulting the weather charts the architect can determine what stress on the roof he is planning will be subjected to.

SNOW AND SHEEP

The weight of snow resulted in a curious dispute in the West some time ago. A flock of sheep was purchased on the basis of so much a pound. The sheep were run on to scales out of doors and weighed. Upon delivery, the buyer found that the sheep were very much under weight. He had paid for several hundred pounds more than he received and put in a claim for the missing sheep. The purchaser had bought both sheep and snow by the pound.

CHANCELLOR OF AUSTRIA SHOT

The Chancellor went to his former enemies and enlisted their help to save his country. Yesterday he conferred with Premier Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, who is in Vienna, coming from Prague, and going to a political conference in London. Premier Masaryk has promised to aid Chancellor Seipel in his efforts to obtain further protection from the League of Nations at the next meeting at the end of this month. Austria knows that these promises were given to Chancellor Seipel personally and that the country has no other man to take his place. Even if he is saved he will be unable to attend the conference.

Ten Deaths in Indiana Wreck Are Reported

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)

ATTICA (Ind.) June 1.—Ten persons are reported to have been killed and a number injured when a Wabash passenger train crashed into a freight train three miles east of here tonight.

Little information is available here regarding the reported crash. A man telephoning here from the scene of the reported wreck stated about ten persons were killed and a number injured. Doctors, nurses and ambulances accompanied by officials were immediately rushed to the scene.

A GIRL'S WAY

The young man next door was watching Bluebellie narrowly from his front window. He had declared frankly that he wanted to marry a sensible girl. The skies were dripping and the sidewalks were wet.

Bluebellie had emerged and turned her beautiful orbs upon the skies.

She inspected the sidewalks. Then she went back into the house.

"Wise girl," murmured the young man. "She has gone after her overboiled."

But Bluebellie, as it transpired when she again appeared, had merely gone back for her new earrings.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

Better Located

An unemployable was offered work digging potatoes. He thought for a few moments and then said:

"I don't think I'll take the job. Let the man dig them who planted them. He will know where to find them."

When business breaks down

---on a lonely road ten miles from home

THERE is a similarity between business and automobiles. Either may break down when you need it most. With your automobile, it's exasperating; with your business, it may be disastrous.

Many men, on the western slope of their lives, encounter reverses which plunge them and their families into distress. The fact that, of every 100 men only three of those who attain ripe old age are independent, demonstrates the high business mortality.

Therefore the prudent man, while still mentally and physically alert, should devise a protection against such distress—a reserve "conveyance", if you please, to carry him on should misfortune come.

Under a LIVING TRUST arrangement many men lay aside a portion of their property to be managed, conserved and the income collected by a Trust Company.

The income which is equal to that of stable investments at current rates, is paid to whom and as they direct. The principal is finally returned as the agreement specifies. Thus you may create a separate estate, independent of your business.

This is but one use of a Living Trust. If you wish to provide an income for your wife, your children or other dependents, a favorite charity, or to arrange an income for yourself, free from investment and management difficulties, investigate the Living Trust.

The Trust Company brings to these functions the benefits of its financial responsibility, and the collective judgment and investment experience of its corps of trust specialists. These are permanent assets, for the Trust Company does not die. The total annual fee for such service is usually three quarters of one percent of the principal of funds in trust.

The uses and operation of the Living Trust are outlined in the booklet "Your Executor and Trustee". A copy will be mailed you by any Trust Company named below for the asking.

"Oh, not for a couple of years," replied the girl.

PLAN TO SLIGHT PORT IS BALKED

Lineberger Heads Off Plot to Kill Greater Harbor

Hurried Meeting Called to Omit Project in Bill

Southland Plans Expected to be Reported Soon

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH) WASHINGTON, June 1.—Congressman Lineberger thwarted a plan of Democrats and others to report out a river and harbor bill with Los Angeles and Long Beach greater harbor projects omitted from the measure.

A meeting was called for Friday in the absence of Chairman Dempsey, and an effort was staged to secure the unanimous support of the river and harbor committee for a rule by which all committee amendments to the bill would be thereafter barred and only the projects already voted into the bill as it now is drawn could be authorized at this session.

The Los Angeles Harbor and the Long Beach Harbor improvements and the Hudson River (N. Y.) projects not yet have been reported on by the board of engineers of the War Department and, therefore, these projects are not in the proposed bill. If the plans of some members of the committee had carried, no committee amendments of these projects could have been included in any present river and harbor legislation and the ef-

CO-ED LEGS CUT OUT OF NEWS

Midwest College Journalism Directors Put Ban on Flapper Features

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH) BELOIT (Wis.) June 1.—Mention of "co-ed legs" in news stories and photographs of them sent from colleges of the Midwest Conference are barred by the decision of directors of journalism departments in convention here. Too much college news appearing in newspapers on an anatomical display by word and picture, the journalistic teachers believe.

Pictures of college girls need not terminate at the knee, the delegates concede, but genuine news interest must be present in the subject and pose.

Efforts for improvements would have been much delayed. Congressman Lineberger, learning of the plot to avoid immediate action on Long Beach, Los Angeles and Hudson River improvements, wired Chairman Dempsey to return immediately to Washington. He arrived in time to preside at the suddenly called meeting and the committee refused to agree to a rule barring these projects as committee amendments.

Congressman Lineberger expects that the War Department will forward to the committee within forty-eight hours the engineers' report on the Los Angeles and Long Beach greater harbor plans, as well as the Hudson River project and that, when the bill for river and harbor improvements is reported, it will contain authorizations for the greater improvement at Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors, in support of which Long Beach recently has voted by tremendous majorities to spend several millions for its share in the improvement.

Unless this plan prevails there will be no authorizations made for river and harbor work until the December session.

WHITTIER SERMON IS GIVEN BY DR. DEXTER

WHITTIER, June 1.—Before the largest group ever assembled in the amphitheater, Dr. Walter P. Dexter, president of Whittier College, today delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the twenty-one members of the graduating class.

This was the opening exercises for commencement week, the twenty-first in the history of the school. The exercises opened with the professional of the graduates in caps and gowns. Dr. Charles E. BUSINESS SITUATION SURVEYED

Chief Topic for Week Slackening Production and Dull Markets

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)

NEW YORK, June 1.—Stagnant markets, speculative indecision and receding production were the topics of interest in financial and business quarters during the past week.

Production of steel fell back to about 55 per cent of capacity. This compares with a peak of 85 per cent of capacity a little more than two months ago and with a low of 40 or 45 per cent touched with the close of last year. Buying continued to be on a restricted basis. Inquiries for pig iron continued in moderate volume but the purpose of these seemed to be the testing of the market rather than a strong desire to secure the metal. Railroad carloadings continued to make a good showing. Although running behind last year they still are above those in any other year. May is proving a better month in this respect than April.

Railroad earnings for April reflected the loss of traffic. In the previous year April earnings set a high record at 8 1/2 per cent on valuation. This April they were only 4 3/4 per cent. The May results are expected to be somewhat better, as loadings have run higher than in April.

Commodity prices continued to exhibit a downward tendency. In some cases, such as sugar and oil, this was due partly to unfavorable weather. In others, such as rubber and silk, it was due to abundant supplies of raw material and reduced demand.

Cotton, however, held firm, despite the quiet character of the dry-goods markets. Here the weather was a supporting influence. The trade expects tomorrow's crop report to reveal a condition of about 47 per cent. This would be about 4 per cent below the year ago.

Barring a flurry in call money, the price of credit remained low. No immediate change in the character of the money market is anticipated until industry revives or the fall crop making and moving demands make themselves felt.

MELLON CUTS KENYON OFF UNETHICAL LIST

SYNOPSIS Tom Kendrick, a young American of whom she has dreamed since she met him in the days of her poverty, has returned to Paris and sought out Elise Duchanier. When he knew her she was maid to Lorette, the celebrated dancer. Now, because Lorette's jealousy has miscarried, Elise is La Phalene, whose fame as a dancer outshines that of her former mistress. Dr. Lapiere, who loves Elise, has warned her she has one year to live. Elise, sole support of her invalid sister, has sought security in the number of her suitors, playing one against the other. They include Count Mordac and her manager, Maurice Brunel. Also Ahmed, Arab Prince, and Donatello, the celebrated dancer. A duel of dice and poison. Ahmed lost. Kendrick found Elise at the duelling ground, whither she had gone in order to stop the strange count.

CHAPTER XLVII TILL AUTUMN

Kendrick was silent for a little while, and Elise leaned back and waited. She still felt under the influence of the shock she had experienced when she discovered Ahmed, but she was able to study Kendrick unobtrusively.

He was not changed in the slightest, she decided. Like Lorette, she found him a little thinner and more tanned, but in himself, in his expression, in his gestures, he was as she had always hoped to see him.

To sit watching him brought back to her vividly those simple days in the Rue Jacques. She had been confident then that Kendrick would come back. And now he had come—and there was Ahmed—the notoriety of La Phalene—all the tales which were whispered. And the sentence of Dr. Lapiere.

To be able to throw herself at his feet and tell him La Phalene was a shame! But she was under sentence of death, and with the coming of the autumn of her life, Kendrick said: "You had a sister, an invalid. How is she?"

"She is up on the coast recuperating. In a week she will be fit to undergo an operation which may right her altogether." He nodded gravely. "I remember you telling me of her the last time I was in Paris. His eyes searched her face. "Things have altered a little since then."

He added: "I was with Lorette last evening. I went to look for you." "Lorette?" she repeated—and saw into his appearance in the Bois that morning. Lorette—the Count Mordac. Suppose Mordac had lied!

"Yes," said Kendrick, "to look for you." "You found me," she said, very quietly, "out there, with him." He leaned forward. "Why did you decide to become La Phalene?"

"For obvious reasons—La Phalene is better off than Elise Duchanier." She was striving to keep in the forefront of her thoughts an indomitable will to die. For to have shown him that she cared, perhaps, thereby, to have created

LINEBERGER ON SHIPPING DATA BOARD

California Congressman to Study Situation in Many Ports Abroad

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Congressman Lineberger of Long Beach will spend most of his time in England and other great world ports of Europe this summer as a member of the House committee of seven to investigate the operations of the United States Shipping Board. Most of the members of this committee believe that the key to the successful operations of the Shipping Board is overseas and rather than bring to this country seventy-five employees of the foreign offices of the Shipping Board it would be more effective and much cheaper for the committee to go to London and other world trade headquarters to get the exact conditions of shipping and trade competition. Therefore the committee will meet in London early in July and proceed with the examination of what the United States Shipping Board vessels must do to make the Merchant Fleet of the United States a paying business.

The members of the committee are Wallace White of Maine, chairman; H. A. Cooper of Wisconsin; Fred Lehigh of New Jersey, and Walter Lineberger, Long Beach, Republican. Also, W. B. Bankhead of Alabama, and Tom Connolly, Texas, Democrat.

It is expected that this work will require the attention of the committee for several weeks in collecting foreign data and also some time in Washington in completing the report to present to Congress at the beginning of the next session in December.

OFFERED PRESIDENCY OF TEXAS UNIVERSITY

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

BERKELEY, June 1.—Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, professor of history at the University of California, said yesterday he had received an offer of the presidency of the University of Texas, but that he had not accepted or rejected it.

Are We Downhearted? NO!

This may be a severe blow to those whose hearts are bowed down by hard-luck stories and the opinions of sidewalk calamity mongers with whom sorrow and disappointment are always present.

Business, like the ocean tide, rises and falls with the cycles of circumstance, but there is no more likelihood of Los Angeles going to the bad than there is of the Pacific Ocean drying up.

Business conditions are largely a state of mind. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he" applies to cities, factories, stores and banks.

So let's all start June with confidence, a smile and a little harder personal work. Southern California and Los Angeles are "whiter" today than they were in 1923, and here's the proof:

Factories

408 new industries added to Los Angeles' pay roll list since January 1, 1924. (For names phone Chamber of Commerce, TRinity 3431.)

Building Activities

20,544 building permits issued first four months of 1924 against 19,400 for same months in 1923.

Bank Clearings

Increase of Los Angeles bank clearings (the barometer of business exchange of checks) for first four months of 1924 over 1923 amounted to $401,593,660.

Retail Trade

Increase of Los Angeles retail trade in first four months of 1924 over same period in 1923 (the banner year) amounted to 23%.

Tax Returns

First four months of 1924 income tax receipts increased $4,079,040 or 32% over 1923.

Manufacturing Tax

For four months of 1924 shows increase over same period 1923 of $100,000.00.

Postal Receipts

First four months of 1924 show increase over same period 1923 of 21.48%, leading every American city west of St. Louis.

WOMEN HURT IN SALE RUSH

Seven Feminine Bargain-Hunters, After Pair of Silk Hose Free, Injured in Crush

BROOKLYN, June 1.—Nine persons, seven of them women, were injured when two plate glass windows in the store of the Famous Knit Textile Company, Manhattan, were crashed in during a surge of women anxious to take advantage of a bargain sale of sweaters, silk hosiery and dresses.

Three of the women were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with lacerations of the face and hands, while the others were attended by ambulance surgeons and sent home.

Brooklynites among the injured were Helen McGuire, 37 years of age, to St. Vincent's Hospital; Isaac Harris, 37, and Minnie Glaser, 23. The Textile Company had advertised a grand opening and offered as an inducement to purchasers a pair of pure silk stockings to any one making a dollar purchase. The opening hour was set for 10 a.m.

As early as 7 a.m. crowds of women began to gather about the doorway of the store, and so large did the crowd become that at 9 a.m. six policemen from the Merced-street station were sent to the scene to preserve order. When the doors were finally thrown open the women strove to squeeze through a narrow corridor

(COLUMBIA RECORDING)
HAN BERNARDINO, 190m
 Han Bernardino has the hair of a bandit. The girl came from behind a tree on the corner near midnight last night and up A. Ramon, deftly digging a purse containing $23 from his pocket as he obeyed her order to keep quiet.
 Ramon was returning home at a theater when the girl came from behind the tree and said, "Oh, mister," Ramon stopped, and as he turned the girl commanded, "Stick 'em up and be quick as lightning."
 Pressing her revolver to his his pockets and threw his gun on the ground, never taking her off her victim. She then saw Ramos to beat it. He told her he believed the girl disappeared in an automobile parked around the corner from the scene of the slaying.

The girl was described by Ramos as pretty, short and of dark complexion, and with marcelled hair.

CHASE COMPANY ABANDONS WELL

Dominguez Hole is Deserted at 5000 Feet

Notice of Intention Filed With Bureau

First Admitted Failure in Field's History

The Dominguez field, during the past week, witnessed its first official abandonment since the completion of the discovery well by the Union Oil Company last August, when the L. R. Chase Oil Company, after drilling to approximately 5000 feet without a single showing, filed notice of abandonment with the State Bureau of Mines.

The Chase organization started its well last November, following an unsuccessful venture in the Santa Fe Springs field. A ten-acre lease about one mile due west of the Chandler No. 1 was obtained, the general opinion at that time being that the discovery well was in a westerly direction.

Although the Chase abandonment apparently defines the western limit of the Dominguez field, A. O. Birch of the Birch Oil Company has started a well immediately south of the Chase project, and is said to have expressed the intention to drill 6000 feet deep if necessary to make a thorough test of the field. Mr. Birch owns 140 acres in fee.

REPORT CONFIRMED

Reports of the Union Oil Company confirm the field report that the Hellman No. 3 has found an oil sand at about 4200 feet. This well offsets the Shell Company's Hellman No. 1, which is down 5064 feet in gray sand, and according to Shell officials has never had a showing. It is believed by some operators that the Shell may have passed up the 4200-foot sand, although the well was carefully cored from the shallowest depth where oil showings were considered possible.

Shell is still having trouble with its Childe No. 1, which is down the oil sand in the eastern part of the field at around 3700 feet. In an attempt to cement the well casing was struck, and the trouble has not yet been ironed out. The Superior Oil Company is preparing to drill an offset to the Childe lease on the east.

NEARING COMPLETION

The Shell's Reyes lease has several wells in final stages of completion. Reyes No. 2 is expected to go on production this week, after two months of cleaning up since it broke loose from the gas blowout of the field. Reyes No. 4 is cemented, and Reyes No. 3 is in oil sand at 3755 feet and milling right along.

The Union Oil Company has a number of wells which have been on the verge of completion for weeks. Trouble of various kinds has prevented any of these wells from being brought in.

The Union's Garcia No. 1 is drilling at 4420 feet in gray sand. This is the deepest well in the field, and one of the deepest in the State.

CHRIST'S TEACHINGS WILL STOP WAR, SAYS PASTOR
Rev. Chas. F. Hutslar of Pasadena Makes Eloquent Peace Plea in His Radio Sermon

Answering with an emphatic "Yes" the question: "Will the principles in Christ's teachings avert war?" Rev. Charles F. Hutslar, pastor of the Washington Christian Church of Pasadena, voiced an eloquent plea for world peace in his sermon to the KJH audience, preached yesterday from The Times as well as individuals into bitter conflict. Money, prestige, position, power through which peoples have sought it are the false gods which have brought the world to the brink of the abyss. Jesus shows the true way for men to obtain their heart-longing without conflict in the introduction of The Sermon on the Mount.

HIGH STANDARD NEEDED
The second principle in His peace plan is a high standard of character. The lack of quality in the character of any social order naturally gives dominion to the brute nature in man, which always makes him warlike in spirit. A blood-thirsty people are most generally an illiterate and spiritually impoverished people. Even our modern war displayed many examples of that fact. The highest type of manhood is human-loving and peace-promoting. The Great Teacher said of them, that the peacemakers are the children of God.

WAR A TRAVESTY
"War is a dreadful plague upon the society of man. Without question it is the greatest travesty upon the principles of Christian civilization to be found. Our very imagination rebels when we attempt to expose it to the thought of human beings supposed to be created in the image of a loving God, laughing one another on fields of blood because of misunderstanding and human jealousies. In our case war has cost more than money, life, character and national honor is that of the futility of war. Its nefarious means for the settlement of disputes is looked upon by the decent citizenship of civilized society as most contemptible and deceiving. So we hang anti-war placards in our home windows and we are striving to disarm our minds and bring our sentiments and attitudes under the spell of Him who is the Prince of Peace.

"Will you kindly keep the thought uppermost as we proceed, that the spirit and principles which make for a peaceful union among nations must begin in your neighborhood before they can become effective in the White House and in the government of nations?"

Jesus' constitution of nations is the correct pursuit of true happiness, the desire of which is innate in the human being. Such pursuit is recognized in our Constitution as one of the inalienable rights of humanity, making that happiness through the avenues has brought nations into the world.

OUR CROWDED COURTS
"We boast of our peaceful ideals in America; and yet our courts are overcrowded with quarreling humanity. The peace of the earth and the peace of the human mind have enough of Christian grace and charity and faith to settle their differences before the divine court of God instead of the courts of men. Love your enemy, don't sue him, is the eternal law of social order and peace.

"Jesus sums up the whole law of man in the following: 'Love God with all the heart, mind, soul, strength, and thy neighbor as thyself.' Those are the only war preventatives ever enunciated to the race. They lift men from their idols of earth to the God who loved the world, and they save men to the highest service of their fellow-beings.

"Jesus Christ has given to the world the Divine League of Nations, which will conquer war and crown peace. His great principles have not failed; they have only been delayed by the stubborn will of men. This day from the very courts of Heaven, God calls the nations to give tremendous and serious concern to the platform of world harmony proclaimed and exemplified by His Son. From a million graves re-echoes the message of 2000 years ago: 'Give glory to God and on earth His peace and good will among men.' The supreme task of every intelligent people is sacrificially to live great issues for which the noblest of earth have sacrificed died. The questions are ours: Shall the deserts blossom as the rose? Shall the new day dawn when the 'nations shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks? Shall we save our children to the holy purpose of a loving God, or will we surrender them to the bloody altars of the war-god?"

CHINA'S VIRTUES ARE PRAISED BY PASTOR
"Interracial Unity" is the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. William C. Issett at the American Church. The Great Teacher said in part as follows:

"The world has grown past the conception of God as belonging to one tribe or nation. In His mind all nations of the world are one people. While our forefathers did not have this original idea, when they declared that all men are created equal, nevertheless we have contended from the beginning that certain races are superior to others. This was true of all races in our midst, and have insisted on the principle abroad. Because we have a representative group of Chinese scholars with us today I want to speak of contributions the Chinese have made to the world's civilization. There is a new China existing, and it is one of the co-operating nations of the world. It makes a difference to the world what is done in China. From a current magazine coming to my desk I read of long-distance telephones, Tibetan and Mongolian Bank, gas power for electric plants, etc. There are automobile clubs, women's clubs, chambers of commerce. And there are 400,000,000 Chinese. We shall look to China for the conservation of past achievements. She has centuries of continuous history. Other ancient nations have passed, but ancient China still is as virile a nation as any European country. When the past history of that nation is given to the world we shall have one of the most effective efforts for world unity known. There is a vital relationship between the proud American Indian and the Chinese which is rapidly being established. While respect for parents has developed into ancestor worship, yet the whole world needs the lesson. America could well sit at the feet of China and learn how to teach children to honor their parents. They are the most industrious people in the world. Their contribution to the world's wealth is enormous. Instead of going to the ant and considering her ways, we might well take a trip to China and learn the same lesson. Their patience, tolerance and adaptability, their contentment in adverse circumstances while they are constantly improving them, teach us the great lesson of love for our neighbor, and they will return it a hundredfold. Let us get acquainted with our Chinese neighbors."

RABBI PAYS TRIBUTE TO NATION'S HEROES
An eloquent tribute to America's heroes, past and present, was paid by Dr. Mayer Winkler, rabbi of the Congregation Shalom, in his Memorial Day sermon. Dr. Winkler spoke in part as follows:

"May 30 is set aside to lay wreaths upon the graves of the heroes of our country. The blood of the martyrs was not shed in vain. They fought for the Union and their souls were filled by the spirit of the founders of this republic. Our immortal heroes had the vision that this God-given country, composed of many nations, shall be preserved by the spirit of unity. Unity should be the magic slogan of all Americans who love freedom and democracy. Abraham Lincoln, the hero of freedom, the emancipator of slaves, stands as an eternal reminder and proclaimer of equality. We cherish the memory of those immortal heroes who have the courage to pay with their lives when the welfare of the great republic was at stake. It is a sentiment of gratitude by which we are moved to glorify those self-sacrificing men of the Civil War and of our late war. The example set by them who give their lives that freedom may exist points the way for the living to be loyal and faithful to the eternal principles of justice, freedom and equality laid down in our Constitution. Real democracy includes the spirit of prejudice of hatred and of discrimination."

SAYS FUNDAMENTALS SHOULD BE STRESSED
Manly P. Hall, pastor of the Church of the People, preached yesterday on "The Things That Count." He said in part:

"Christ asked His followers who they thought He was and each answered a different way. The same is true today in religion. Every creed and faction differs from who this great man really was. To them this seems a very important problem but to the true Christian it means very little. One of the old prophets once said, 'I do not believe words because of the men who say them but because they are true.' This is the thought which it seems ought to be emphasized. In things religious we spend entirely too much time discussing personalities and not enough time spreading the gospel of brotherhood and kindness."

HEOEROES OF PEACE LAUDED BY RABBI
"Our Heroic Dead" was the subject of an address given by Dr. E. F. Magnus last Friday at the Temple B'nai B'rith. He said in part:

"This day is dedicated to our heroic dead. It commemorates the memory of those who were rich and poor, wise and simple, prominent and unknown, white and black, Christian, Jew and free thinker. This day we pay our

Frigidaire PROTECTS their Health

All the careful attention that mother gives to safeguarding the health of the little ones is wasted if the food the children eat, and the milk they drink, is not kept in proper condition after it arrives in the home.

Frigidaire provides that safeguard. It is a means of obtaining in the home, refrigeration which scientists and U. S. Government officials agree upon as necessary for proper food preservation. These are, first, a temperature always below 50 degrees; second, a dry atmosphere; and third, thorough cleanliness.

These conditions cannot be obtained through any system of refrigeration dependent upon melting ice.

Frigidaire protects the health of the entire family and provides many added advantages. There is no waiting for the ice man—no mess and nuisance of ice delivery—no messy drain pipes to clean. Frigidaire requires little attention.

Frigidaire operates automatically from home electric current and usually costs less than you pay for ice. It can be installed in your own ice-box. It can be bought at a low price and on easy terms. There are 17 styles and sizes ranging in price from $250 up to $1,400.

JOKES NOW ARE HAVING THEIR DAY
Smile-Provokers of All Kinds Being Welcomed by Laugh Editor

"See here, Cohen, this suit you sold me is full of rust spots."

"Well, we aim to please, mister. Didn't you ask for a suit you would wear like iron?"

Eugene Chibberg, 1139 South New Hampshire avenue, Los Angeles, receives honorable mention for the foregoing, submitted to the local Laugh Editor of The Times. The committee which selects each week the best jokes to appear in the "Local Laughs" film exhibited at leading theaters, was tempted to award it one of the cash prizes, but another laugh, just a shade heartier, succeeded in edging its way to a coveted place on the film.

The judges also thought this one pretty good:

Hobo (at back door): Lady, here's a button. Will ya kindly sew a coat on it for me?

It was submitted by Arthur W. Kistner, 715 South Hope street, Los Angeles, who also receives the degree of H. M.

Many readers are hitting pretty close, and there is no telling when a check for $5, $10, $25 or one of the twelve $1 prizes may be forthcoming. The prizes are awarded each week. Successful contestants also have the fun of seeing their jokes on the screen with their names and address.

An important point to remember is that original laughs are preferred. Something funny happens most every day, at the store, office or in the home, and after the incident can be incorporated into a joke or witticism. Keep your jokes within thirty words, and send in as many as you please, as often as you please. A coupon appears inside, which also lists theaters where "Local Laughs" may be seen.

Guillen Due to Plead Today to Poison Charges

Mack Guillen will enter a plea today to one of the two charges against him in Judge Hardy's court and a date will be set for his trial. The first charge, attempted poisoning of his wife, will be built on her testimony, the second, the murder of his young brother-in-law, who is said to have taken the poison meant for his wife, will rest on circumstantial evidence, since the wife cannot testify against her husband unless she is the complainant.

Guillen is represented by Deputy Public Defender Felcher. Dep. Dist. Atty. Clark will prosecute.

JEWS DESCRIBED AS "PAL" OF CHILDREN

Dr. Henry C. Culbertson preached at the Plymouth Congregational Church yesterday on "What Jesus Prayed for the Children." He spoke in part as follows:

"Watching the picture, 'Boy of Mine,' I felt to wondering about Jesus' relation with the boys and girls, whether He was a strange, mysterious figure, with a far-away look as portrayed in the stained glass windows, or a real pal to the children, such as the young doctor in the picture. I believe He was a real pal, whom they took to their hearts as He took them to His. He illustrated one of His parables from their games, and the sunshine of His smile made many a child's day brighter. We read that mothers brought their children to Him that He should lay His hands on them and pray. What did He ask for the little ones whom he loved? I feel that He cared greatly whether they had riches, or brilliant positions, or lives of ease, such as our ambitions usually inspire. But I believe he longed for them to have the eternal glory of true, noble character, triumphing over all hardships and tragedies, and to have cheery personalities, shining with faith and hope and love. Jesus prayed for those little ones to have the abiding reality and not merely the things that pass."

ENVISIONS HAPPIER DAY FOR MANKIND

"The True Way to Life and Happiness" was discussed at the Trinity Auditorium yesterday by W. R. Stewart, who spoke under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. Mr. Stewart said in part:

"Man in his sorrow has appealed to three sources for aid. For physical or organic relief he calls the physician. Some aid comes, but the undertaker has never had his piece of mild disturbance by excessive success of the doctor; he is always sure of his job. The second profession which is in a position to render some aid is the law profession, with which we plead on behalf of the ill of violated justice and equity to secure at least a tolerable adjustment in our personal relationships in human society. But who today would hail the legal profession as man's complete deliverer from injustice and oppression to fellow man? The third profession, and the noblest of all, is the ministry—when it is the ministry patterned after Christ, the Great Teacher and helper. Here man goes for knowledge, aid and comfort on questions of his relationship to God and his own future. Let us, though, not hope for too much from this field, since the same imperfect race of Adam as we. The only hope left for man is the full establishment of Christ's Kingdom upon earth through which 'all the families of the earth will be blessed.' The true way to life—overlasting life—happiness is for man to retrace his steps, not into primitive ways of living, but into his original relationship with his creator as a son of God."

TRIAL TODAY FOR WOMAN AS BIGAMIST

Mrs. Bailey Declared to Have Likened Marriage Permit to Dog License

Mrs. Josephine Bailey, whose trial on a charge of bigamy will begin today in Judge Reeve's court, considered a marriage license much in the same light as a dog license, according to one of her asserted husbands.

Mrs. Bailey is accused of marrying Valentine A. Meehan of San Francisco on January 6, last, while still the wife of Robert O. Bailey, she is said to have married O. Bailey on August 25, last.

The case will be prosecuted by Dep. Dist. Atty. Orma.

FRIEND OF VAN BUREN

Mrs. E. A. Van Court, at Age of 92, Is Visiting Son Here

A personal friend of President Martin Van Buren is visiting in Los Angeles. She is Mrs. E. A. Van Court of Oakland, 91 years of age, mother of DeWitt Van Court and grandmother of Carroll Van Court, handball and boxing instructor at the Athletic Club.

Mrs. Van Court is still in the best of health, and two years ago won first prize in a lawn tennis tournament in the northern city. She is the great-grandmother of four children, two in Los Angeles—the son and daughter of Carroll Van Court—and two in Oakland. The Van Courts formerly lived in Mountain View, Santa Clara county, where DeWitt Van Court was born. This was also the birthplace of Frank Bacon.

WHY SCHOOL BONDS ARE NEEDED
The best educational facilities, with adequate school plants and equipment, constitute one of the big essentials in the growth and development of Los Angeles. The local school system, by its excellence and high standards, has attracted the attention of people of other States for many years and has been a direct factor in bringing new residents here.

It is vitally important that there shall be no lowering of our school standards, no backward step in the facilities available to the young people of the city. That a fine, forward-looking school program has been steadfastly maintained, even in the face of an exceedingly rapid growth in population, redounds to the credit of the residents of the city. When the voters were asked to authorize a bond issue of $17,400,000 two years ago to provide new sites and new buildings they did not hesitate to do so. This money has been expended in erecting approximately 300 buildings and in procuring new sites.

It now becomes necessary to issue more bonds and the voters of Los Angeles will next Tuesday, June 3, pass on a school-bond issue of $24,640,000. The money is urgently needed; in fact, the city's whole educational program will be jeopardized without it. The Board of Education is calling upon all public-spirited citizens to give the issue an overwhelming majority. Under the law the bonds must have two-thirds of the total vote cast in order to pass, so citizens who wish to support their city in this matter should not be careless or negligent in voting.

In spite of the extensive building program under the previous bond issue, the city has outgrown its facilities, so rapid has been the population gain. Many children are unable to go to school at all. Twenty thousand children are now out of school half a day. Classes are being held in some cases in halls, cloakrooms, tents and other makeshift quarters. The attendance this year is 30,000 more than it was last year, and next year there will be another heavy increase.

Some of the money will be used to purchase additional sites, a matter that it is unwise to delay in a city of rapidly increasing values. Other money is needed to build on new sites and on sites purchased with the proceeds of the bond issue of two years ago.

As nearly as the Board of Education can estimate the increase in population and school attendance the bond issue to be voted upon Tuesday will carry on the city's educational program for three years.

As to the effect on taxes, advocates of the bonds point out that failure to carry the bonds will be much more likely to increase taxes because emergency appropriations could not be avoided, whereas the bond issue will be spread over a long period.

No other issue is to be voted upon Tuesday. The election thus affords an excellent opportunity to the voters of Los Angeles to express their interest and pride in their fine school system by giving the bonds a heavy affirmative vote.

THREE BOYS
Twenty years ago three young men were graduated from high school together. One was a dreamer who didn't know just what he wanted to do, but was filled with lofty though vague aspirations. Another didn't care what he did just so he did well. He wasn't going to take the first thing which offered, unless it was what he considered a good start. The third knew just what he wanted to do. He wanted to be an electrical engineer.

None could afford to go to college except the boy intent on making a "good start," and he was doubtful that it would do him any good. With a good start, he argued, he would be four years ahead of his friends who went to college. The dreamer was sorry he couldn't go to college because he had not quite found himself. He decided to take any job that offered temporary relief for his needs, and to keep dreaming in his leisure till he found himself. The other went to the biggest electrical engineering in the city and told him his ambitions.

"I can't go to college or technical school," he said, "but there is only one thing I think I can make a success in. I feel if I don't get into it, somehow, I'll miss my field of greatest achievement. Can you advise me?"

"I can give you a note to a man who will put you to work in a big electrical plant, if you want to smother on overalls and jumper, get yourself smeared with engine oil and learn by experience," the big engineer replied.

Friends of the boy's late father had previously offered him good places, one in a bank, another in an insurance office. But he took the note and went to work in overalls. He knew what he wanted to do.

The dreamer went to work in a packing-house, but spent his evenings in the public library. He still wanted to find himself. The lad who wanted a good start called on all the most influential friends of his family, and finally landed an exceptionally good clerkship, for a young fellow, in a gas office. He didn't know anything about gas, and cared less. The salary enabled him to wear good clothes and be a fledgling sort. He also could sit behind a brass railing and look dignified.

He still is there—still a clerk. The dreamer drifted from job to job. He had some good ideas, and occasionally they carried him high. He also had some erratic ideas, which sometimes carried him clear off his feet. At 40 he is broke but hopeful and still dreaming. He has accomplished more in his sports than many more successful men have in their whole lives, but he has lacked tenacity. He thinks next time he rides high he will manage to stay high. But he still has no definite purpose in life, is making no settled campaign for victory.

The boy who went to work in overalls now is one of the biggest engineers in the United States. He also has numerous inventions to his credit. He lives in California, but when he goes to Chicago or New York or Mexico City big men of his profession gather around him. They know what he has done.

He knew what he wanted to do when he started, and has kept oversteering at it. The only "good start" is a start in the right direction.

THE OLDEST BANK
The oldest bank in the world is said to be at Barcelona, in Spain. It dates back to 1401, when bankers were mere exchangers of money. The Bank of England was not established until 1694, when the Barcelona institution was almost entering its third century. But look at the banks in the world now and see how they are spreading out. Think of the money that keeps them going!

THE SAGE OF CALABASAS
Experts in automobile accidents—yes, there are such things—seem to be coming more and more to the belief that speed per se has surprisingly little to do with them.

A casual perusal of the news columns for a few weeks by anybody lacking preconceptions and prejudices will do much to bear out this assertion.

Note how few taxicab drivers are involved in accidents. They are not. Taxicab drivers, to be sure, form a relatively small proportion of the total, but they do a much larger proportion of the total driving. They will pile up as much mileage in a day, on the average, as a dozen ordinary drivers.

And they speed. Taxicab companies might not care to admit, officially, that their drivers speed, but the fact remains and they probably would admit it privately if they were sure of not being quoted. However, it is unnecessary to prove what everybody knows.

But they know how to drive and they keep their cars in control. They do not take many chances, though they do things in traffic that would be suicide for the less skillful.

And, anyway, while Billie was waiting for this friend a guy blew in and, after Slim cut his hair and said, "Have a singe!" He said, "Sure," and he kept on taking everything as fast as Slim could suggest it and had run up a bill of eight or ten berries and was just starting.

SOME REFLECTIONS
BY J. A. GRAVES
The American people are the most extravagant people in the world. They are extravagant in their living expenses, in their business industries, in their construction work, in their amusements, in their charities, in their political activities, their church buildings and equipment and even in the manner of disposing of their dead.

They enjoy more luxuries than any other people. They possess more automobiles, more talking machines, more musical instruments, more radio outfits per capita than the people of any other nation. Running water, modern plumbing, gas heating appliances and electric lights are the rule rather than the exception in dwellings in all cities and in a large number of country houses.

The three national outdoor sports, baseball, football and golf, to say nothing of the minor sports, are supported by our citizens with a lavish prodigality. No one hesitates to purchase those things which attract the eye or fancy, even if they must be purchased on the installment plan. The extent to which such purchasing is carried on is marvelous. To buy on the installment plan is, in itself, an extravagance. Articles so purchased cost more than when purchased for cash. Dealers collect interest on all deferred purchases, if not directly, through increased prices of the goods sold by them.

Notwithstanding their extravagance, the American people—not a few, but the people taken collectively—are constantly growing richer. This fact is proven by the ever-increasing number of those who own their own houses and the accessories that make a modern home inviting. Constantly growing deposits in savings banks are another evidence of saved wealth. These deposits show thrift and economy in spite of the universal tendency to spend freely, savings deposits are sufficiently intensive to allow of an accumulation of funds by a great many people for the proverbial rainy day.

In view of prevailing conditions the constant cry of trouble-makers about the oppressed and downtrodden poor is as inconsistent as it is false. Of course, there are plenty of shiftless people who are poor and who provide no support for themselves or their families. These are others not shiftless, but from misfortune suffered, are the victims of circumstances and find themselves almost objects of charity. There are others who never were blessed with a good start, who have squandered opportunities or wasted efforts on fruitless enterprises. There are many people who are the victims of environment. They were not taught in early life any self-sustaining occupation. As they grew up they found themselves misfits in the general make-up of the industrial machinery of the country.

Certainly, in no other nation can there be so much poverty and suffering as in this country. The people here are trained to properly perform the tasks that go to make up the sum total of human endeavor. They are not the victims of circumstance, but they are the victims of environment. They were not taught in early life any self-sustaining occupation. As they grew up they found themselves misfits in the general make-up of the industrial machinery of the country.

Violent colors for men's clothing are predicted again. Have to go some to beat the silk-stripe shirts worn in Sonoratown.

Castles in the air may look beautiful in perspective, but they aren't worth a darn when you try to borrow money on them.

An experienced matron says that a handsome husband is a heavy liability instead of an asset, so far as the home is concerned.

The bees of our beloved country are producing nearly 300,000,000 pounds of honey every year, which is certainly very sweet of them.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

In general the diet in diabetes should be one low in carbohydrates (starches and sugars). Acid fruits, greenleaf vegetables and nuts, except peanuts and chestnuts, are the foods that have the least amount of carbohydrates.

In a recent "Answer to Correspondents" the word "except" through a typographical error, was made to read "especially," which gives an altogether different and wrong meaning to that last sentence. Those of you who have been following our column know this was wrong, and I sincerely thank those of you who have called my attention to the error. The fact that I stated in the same "Answers" that diabetes is not a case for home treatment will doubtless have robbed the error of harm. I fervently hope so.

Remember, the diet in diabetes should, in general, be one low in carbohydrates; and acid fruits, greenleaf vegetables and nuts, except peanuts and chestnuts, are the foods that have the least amount of carbohydrates.

ECZEMA

Some time ago a well-known physician, in an article on eczema, said that it is a grab-bag into which the doctors throw a multitude of unrelated skin troubles and into which the people pitch about all the eruptions not already thrown in; and since the collection is a hodge-podge, it follows that what will cure one case will not cure another.

Since that article was written we have learned considerably more about eczema than we knew then. One thing we have always suspected, and now know, is that the diet of the patient often has to do with its occurrence. In many cases of obscure eczema it has been found that some of the foods are irritating factors—especially some protein, and the person is what we call sensitized to this protein.

This food sensitization is sometimes also called food idiosyncrasy. It may be temporary or lasting. Usually before this sensitization appears, there has been some irritation of the intestinal tract by over or under-eating, or from an unbalanced diet, etc. This condition has not only crippled the production of the digestive juices, but has also weakened the digestive tract so that undigested protein passes through it, gaining access to the blood and then to the skin and organs. Naturally, not being properly prepared to be taken up by the blood, it causes disturbances such as eczema, hives, asthma and digestive upsets.

It is often found that egg protein (mostly the white of the egg) is the offender. Naturally, not being properly prepared to be taken up by the blood, it causes disturbances such as eczema, hives, asthma and digestive upsets.

Many eczematous babies are overfat, and limiting their food so that they will not gain so rapidly will cure the disease. Nursing babies who are eczematous have to be treated through the mother. Undernourished children who have eczema can seldom be cured until this condition is brought to normal.

External irritants can also cause eczema. Dr. Knowles and Corson say in the Transactions of the American College of Physicians that about one-sixth of the eczematous eruptions they have encountered are the result of irritating substances used in different occupations. This form of eczema almost always takes place on the hands; although in some trades the poisons are rubbed into certain parts of the body by the clothing, and eczema develops in such areas. Among the occupations which are most liable to cause eczema are washing, cooking, handling sugar, photography, working in the manufacture of chemicals and ammunition, etc. Dyeing the hair may cause eczema.

As a means of prevention of eczema due to external causes, Dr. Knowles and Corson recommend the following ointment for external application:

Use gentle heat to dissolve three parts of petroleum jelly to one part of lanolin. Mix and add 10 to 15 drops of 90 per cent carbolic acid to each 100 ounces of the mixture.

Wash the skin habitually exposed with soap and warm water. Rub with warm water. Apply the ointment and rub in for two or three minutes. Dry with a clean cloth.

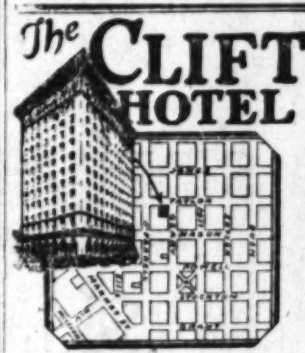

This ointment can also be applied thickly and left on under bandages. Another ointment that is used is known as Lassar's Paste. Babies may have to have a mask made to hold the ointment on, and they may have to have their arms put in splints so they cannot scratch. (We have an article concerning these masks and splints under the title of "Eczema and Cradle Caps in Babies.") You may have it by observing the rules of the column—that is, send in a.s.a.p. with your request.

So, if you have eczema, see if you can't determine the cause, whether external or internal, and act accordingly.

The Woman and Her Job

(Questions concerning the problems of women will be answered in this column if addressed to Mrs. Watson at The Times. Requests for personal replies accompanied by a stamped envelope.)

THAT VEXING QUESTION

To bob or not to bob; that seems the vital question. Every woman I open a letter asking my opinion on this weighty subject I swell with importance. It's pretty serious when you remember that a word spoken may put another case on the divorce calendar. Time and again I've dodged the issue. I can't see what my opinion has to do with it.

I heard an amusing story the other day about a body of learned educators in convention assembled who were confronted with this question:

What stand should they take if the teachers bobbed their hair? A solemn gentleman from one of the Atlantic States arose and said:

"You may count me out. I've been alienated on that subject. I'm a very efficient secretary. I've known her since she was a child. She graduated from high school when she was 17 years of age and came into my office. About eighteen months ago she walked in with her hair bobbed. I was so shocked I could hardly dispose of the morning rush."

"I called her into the private office and for fifteen minutes expressed my opinion and stated my position, and she never said a word."

"Now I ask you if you think it is the proper thing for the secretary of the State Superintendent of Schools of a great State like this to wear bobbed hair?" I finally demanded.

"Mr. Jones, I've known you all my life," she cried tearfully. "And I've worked hard in this office for six years, and not once in all that time have I ever said a single word about the funny way you wear your hair!"

The State superintendent passed his hand over his shining bald pate.

"You can do as you like," gentlemen, but—people who live in glass houses."

The other day I heard of a man in charge of a travel bureau here who refused to employ a modest-looking young woman in the middle twenties because her hair was bobbed. He told her he took that stand "for her own good."

Isn't it dear of him to adopt that protective attitude?

I recall reading Lao Tse some time ago—you remember, he was a wise old Chinese philosopher? The thought he expressed was that when life is gone we become rigid. When we are young we are soft and pliant, our joints are supple, we bend easily accepting new postures and ideas. When we are old our opinions are fixed, our wills set, and our joints stiff. Rigidity is death.

We used to hear a lot about the "short-haired women and the long-haired men." It was spoken caustically. We're still hearing a lot about the former, and the latter—there are none in my neighborhood. I do know a number who are using hair tonic.

Well, if we are going to talk about the bobbed-haired ones individually and severally we will have time for much else. Their number is multiplying daily. Recently my brother returned from a trip to New York and Chicago; he told us that all the smart women on the streets, in the theaters and restaurants had short hair. His wife sought a barber the next morning!

Oh, well, I'm not a "rigid one" yet—perhaps I'm slipping.

FLASHES
HONORS FOR STAR
LAURETTE TAYLOR VIVID IN
"HAPPINESS"

By Grace Kingsley
"Happiness" will give you happiness in the California.
Minerva sprang from the head of Zeus, full-grown and wearing the latest things in goddesses' helmets,
according to the blurb of the ancient mythologists; and whether you believe that theatrical miracle or not, you've got to believe
that something which sounds almost as hard as happiness in picturedom.

I mean Laurette Taylor's sensational success. Without previous training in pictures, this brilliant
actress crashed the gates of movie
fame on her first attempt in
"Fear of My Heart," succeeding
where so many other great actresses have failed or have succeeded only after many attempts. But we thought maybe that was mar-
velously her familiarity with Peg.
Now she has done it again, has established herself firmly as one of the greatest personalities of the screen in "Happiness," which charmed and delighted us throughout and through yesterday. How we do wish she would give up the state entirely, and let us see her
often in pictures. And in different kinds of vehicles, of poignant humaneness, as well as comedy.

But oh, how delightful her comedy is! Laurette Taylor is as great
a pantomimist as Charlie Chaplin,
and that is saying all that there is to say on the subject. There is that endlessly expressive face
of hers, and her bubbling brilliant personality that holds you, no
matter what she may be doing.
As the little shop girl Cinderella, who is such an up-to-date Cinderella that she refuses to take godmother's aid, preferring to work
her own way up to owning her
own shop, who refuses to take
anybody seriously, and plays pranks
on everybody, but goes by her own
way to success and happiness severtheless, Miss Taylor gives the
bullywags every minute.

There's a knockout comes when
she establishes her own shop finally, putting up a big sign over the door, calling herself "Madame Epinaud," "I didn't know," she ex-
claims with a chuckle to her particular friend, "that Epinaud meant
'spinach' in French until after I had put the sign up!"

A whole album of funny bits
of business adorn the picture, and Miss Taylor even manages to get
a new lot of hokum comedy out of funny table manners.

Her love affair with Pat O'Malley
is quite the most refreshing
love affair I've seen on the screen
in a long time. There isn't a trace of the sickly sentimental in it. At first I thought I just couldn't bear
to have them give Pat to anybody
but Mary Philbin after I had seen
them in "Foot's Highway," but I relinquished him gladly. Miss
Taylor after the first scene.

Nothing happens in "Happiness," to be sure, Jenny's mother
doesn't even discover her long-lost
husband in the janitor or the banker or anybody. But it's wonderful entertainment just the same.
Pat O'Malley plays another of those rough-neck Romances, in which
sort of parts he is rapidly establishing a new screen type, and as
the young inventor he is just as adorable as ever. Hedda Hopper
is going to be starred some day in a big part. She makes everything
so vivid and effective and is such a clever trouper. Wish they would give her a chance at "Bella
Donna."

Some day there will be as much applause in a picture house as there is in a home of the spoken
drama. That's when color photography is perfected. What reality it

Those much abused words, "human interest" and "heart appeal,"
may be regarded as shining clearly once again. Their meaning has been freshened and rendered attractive again by the first glimpse here of "Boy of Mine," from Booth Tarkington's story. It is a photoplay among photoplays; a jewel, and its luster, blending a touch of radiant gladness, with a tearful poignancy, will captivate and stir beholders as has no other picture perhaps in many months.

Summer days did not seem to bring summer crowds to Loew's State Theater until the later evening shows, but the heart of those who were there was deeply impressed by a very simple and touching story, and the really astonishing performance of the principals.
I call the performance astonishing not because of the acting that one viewed, but because of the apparent absence of it, the natural truth and beauty that gleamed through the interpretations.

Mostly the film is amusing, genuinely so. For its serious side it sketches so subtly the misunderstandings between a father and his son; the eventual break between the mother and the father.

Of course, there is a touch of melodrama in the way this disagreement comes about, the youngster running away from home and is saved in a rather melodramatic fashion by the family friend.

Still despite this, the naturalness is held intact. The denouement is punctuated with a tear, and it is one that will send a message particularly perhaps to those who are estranged.

I don't know of any finer performance recently than that of Henry Walthall as the husband, unless it be that of Irene Rich as the wife. Miss Rich is pure of feeling in a mother role at any time, but this is one of the best she has ever done. Mr. Walthall has exercised so much discretion in his acting that though you know it is acting, you will not feel conscious of it in an obvious way. Particularly fine was his playing of that moment where he prepares upon his son to return to him.

I would also willingly squander
in liberal praise on Benia Vidor.
He has entered an entirely new stage of his young career, and appears to be finding his way to perfection. Robert Edson is honored as a boy than as a child star. There was the rarest sort of sincerity of his work.

Rockliffe Feiffer, too, adds much to the picture as the friend.
Dot Farley is also unforgettably
good in a small role.

Altogether, this is a picture that brings large credit to William Beaudine, the director, and to his very capable cast.

For light relief there is a Lloyd Hamilton comedy, "Going East," and the Local Laughs Hamilton has seldom put out a funnier comedy. It drew round on round of chuckles, smiles and roars. The Fulton cast all seemed spontaneous and new. Laughs again proved a very amusing feature of the bill.

Selection from the late Victor Herber's "The Only Girl," were directed by Arthur Kay, with Albert McGilvray as musical accompaniment and the concert aroused memories of the achievements of the great comic opera composer.

The Knickerbocker Synchopators, with Mildred Carroll and Olive Gray, performed enjoyably with Jazz tunes.

"Happiness" will give you hap-

Minerva sprang from the head of Zeus, full-grown and wearing the
latest things in goddesses' helmets,
according to the blurb of the ancient mythologists; and whether
you believe that theatrical miracle or not, you've got to believe
that something which sounds almost as hard as happiness in pic-
turedom.

I mean Laurette Taylor's sensational success. Without previous
training in pictures, this brilliant
actress crashed the gates of movie
fame on her first attempt in
"Fear of My Heart," succeeding
where so many other great ac-
tresses have failed or have succeeded only after many attempts. But
we thought maybe that was mar-
velously her familiarity with Peg.
Now she has done it again, has
established herself firmly as one of
the greatest personalities of the screen in "Happiness," which
charmed and delighted us throughout and through yesterday. How we do wish she would give up the
state entirely, and let us see her
often in pictures. And in different kinds of vehicles, of poignant humaneness, as well as comedy.

But oh, how delightful her comedy is! Laurette Taylor is as great
a pantomimist as Charlie Chaplin,
and that is saying all that there
is to say on the subject. There
is that endlessly expressive face
of hers, and her bubbling brilliant personality that holds you, no
matter what she may be doing.
As the little shop girl Cinderella, who is such an up-to-date Cinderella that she refuses to take
godmother's aid, preferring to work
her own way up to owning her
own shop, who refuses to take
anybody seriously, and plays pranks
on everybody, but goes by her own
way to success and happiness sev-
ertheless, Miss Taylor gives the
bullywags every minute.

There's a knockout comes when
she establishes her own shop finally, putting up a big sign over the
door, calling herself "Madame Epinaud," "I didn't know," she ex-
claims with a chuckle to her particular friend, "that Epinaud meant
'spinach' in French until after I
had put the sign up!"

A whole album of funny bits
of business adorn the picture, and Miss Taylor even manages to get
a new lot of hokum comedy out of
funny table manners.

Her love affair with Pat O'Malley
is quite the most refreshing
love affair I've seen on the screen
in a long time. There isn't a trace
of the sickly sentimental in it. At first I thought I just couldn't bear
to have them give Pat to anybody
but Mary Philbin after I had seen
them in "Foot's Highway," but I relinquished him gladly. Miss
Taylor after the first scene.

Nothing happens in "Happi-
ness," to be sure, Jenny's mother
doesn't even discover her long-lost
husband in the janitor or the
banker or anybody. But it's wonderful entertainment just the same.
Pat O'Malley plays another of
those rough-neck Romances, in which
sort of parts he is rapidly establishing a new screen type, and as
the young inventor he is just as adorable as ever. Hedda Hopper
is going to be starred some day in
a big part. She makes everything
so vivid and effective and is such
a clever trouper. Wish they would give her a chance at "Bella
Donna."

Some day there will be as much

edy.

But oh, how delightful her comedy is! Laurette Taylor is as great
a pantomimist as Charlie Chaplin,
and that is saying all that there
is to say on the subject. There
is that endlessly expressive face
of hers, and her bubbling brilliant personality that holds you, no
matter what she may be doing.
As the little shop girl Cinderella, who is such an up-to-date Cinderella that she refuses to take
godmother's aid, preferring to work
her own way up to owning her
own shop, who refuses to take
anybody seriously, and plays pranks
on everybody, but goes by her own
way to success and happiness sev-
ertheless, Miss Taylor gives the
bullywags every minute.

There's a knockout comes when
she establishes her own shop finally, putting up a big sign over the
door, calling herself "Madame Epinaud," "I didn't know," she ex-
claims with a chuckle to her particular friend, "that Epinaud meant
'spinach' in French until after I
had put the sign up!"

A whole album of funny bits
of business adorn the picture, and Miss Taylor even manages to get
a new lot of hokum comedy out of
funny table manners.

Her love affair with Pat O'Malley
is quite the most refreshing
love affair I've seen on the screen
in a long time. There isn't a trace
of the sickly sentimental in it. At first I thought I just couldn't bear
to have them give Pat to anybody
but Mary Philbin after I had seen
them in "Foot's Highway," but I relinquished him gladly. Miss
Taylor after the first scene.

Nothing happens in "Happiness," to be sure, Jenny's mother
doesn't even discover her long-lost
husband in the janitor or the
banker or anybody. But it's wonderful entertainment just the same.
Pat O'Malley plays another of
those rough-neck Romances, in which
sort of parts he is rapidly establishing a new screen type, and as
the young inventor he is just as adorable as ever. Hedda Hopper
is going to be starred some day in
a big part. She makes everything
so vivid and effective and is such
a clever trouper. Wish they would give her a chance at "Bella
Donna."

Some day there will be as much
applause in a picture house as
there is in a home of the spoken
graphy is perfected. What reality it

Men of Vision

"The character of the men at the head of a business affects every phase of that business."

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice)

IN all human progress—in every commercial and industrial development—there is more than meets the eye.

Back of every worthy advance there are men of vision and ability who make achievement possible. The many great works of architectural and engineering skill; the countless products designed for your comfort and efficiency are, one and all, the materialized dream of men whose foresight and imagination first visioned them with the mind's eye.

So into every worth-while endeavor the human factor enters. In a manufacturing concern there are men who set its standards and determine the business methods and principles to be practiced. They (rather than the product itself) have a moral responsibility to you.

Manufacturers accepted into membership in the Rice Leaders of the World Association recognize this responsibility. The guiding heads of these concerns are men of vision who realize the obligation which exists between buyer and seller, employer and employee. The business policies of these men, which assure you of value and satisfaction, are set forth in the following

Qualifications for Membership:

- HONOR: A recognized reputation for fair and honorable business dealings.
- QUALITY: An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.
- STRENGTH: A responsible and substantial financial standing.
- SERVICE: A recognized reputation for conducting business in prompt and efficient manner.

The Emblem of the Association portrays these qualifications by word and symbol. Members are privileged to use this Emblem as evidence of their long established character and reputation.

Without reflecting upon worthy concerns not enjoying membership, it is displayed by member manufacturers in their catalogs, literature and advertisements—on their stationery, salesmen's cards and products.

The Emblem of the Rice Leaders of the World Association itself is the result of an idea brought into practical service. Created so that purchasers might have an added sure and safe means of distinguishing manufacturing concerns whose personnel, products and policies are worthy of confidence, it has become known throughout this country and around the world as a mark of Business Character and dependable Guide in Buying.

Holocaust Still Hazard Study

Four Inquiries Under Way
Deaths; New Victim Sought
Toll to Twenty-three

Keyes and Aides Go to Site
Inquest is Today; Grand Jury Then Will Act

That a sweeping investigation into the fitness of all social service institutions in Los Angeles was to follow as an aftermath of the holocaust of Saturday night, which twenty-three persons lost their lives at the Hope Haven Home at Playa Del Rey, was indicated by Dist. Atty. Keyes tonight following a day's survey of the situation.

While an official announcement was forthcoming, the District Attorney intimated that many of the homes in Los Angeles are not fireproof and that the most serious which existed in the case of the Del Rey school also is present elsewhere. It is expected the situation as a whole will be placed before the county grand jury immediately after the conclusion of the coroner's inquest today.

EVIDENCE COLLECTED
The District Attorney's staff, Coroner and his aides and officials from half a dozen commissions and boards whose work brings them in contact with subnormal youth yesterday collaborated in gathering evidence which will be presented at the inquest. The work will start at 9:30 a. m. and will be conducted at the mortuary chapel of Sharpe and Nolan, York.

The developments of the day, the four-sided investigation was many and varied. They may be roughly grouped as follows:

District Attorney's office: Mr. Keyes and three assistants were in contact with subnormal youth yesterday collaborating in gathering evidence which will be presented at the inquest. The work will start at 9:30 a. m. and will be conducted at the mortuary chapel of Sharpe and Nolan, York.

Coroner's office: Coroner Nathan and his assistants subpoenaed witnesses for inquest today. Sheriff's office: Beginning questioning of witnesses and serving subpoenas on witnesses.

Board of Supervisors: Authorized District Attorney to conduct inquiry; orders best of care for survivors at hospital.

State Board of Charities: Processes records showing recommendations for immediate removal of the school owing to fire menace. Records are dated March 28, last.

INQUIRY ASKED
Public Welfare Commission Petitions Dist. Atty. Keyes for immediate investigation of all institutions.
